“When I established my company people grow in 2013, my aim was to help people and companies alike to find their perfect job or job candidate and to thus promote success amongst both sides. In doing this, my personal aim is to initiate a shift in the working world towards an arrangement where the human being, with all its facets and talents, becomes top priority,” says Georgios Papanikolaou, describing the intention and aim of his recruiting agency people grow.

Having a well-founded technical education themselves, Papanikolaou and his team are the perfect choice for the recruitment of technical specialists and managers. “Thanks to our in-depth knowledge of the technical market and its players, people grow is indeed the best contact. We are familiar with the requirements of this particular market, we know about the special demands of any of these positions and we have the means to find the perfect match,” Papanikolaou explains.

In order to find this match, the team at people grow take on a holistic approach. “Each of our clients, company and candidate alike, are a unique entity. We value their multi-layered singularity and our tailor-made approaches are matched to their specific needs and requirements. people grow follows an approach that highly values communication and empathy. Honesty, determination, singularity, a human touch as well as a deeply felt dedication to our work are terms that characterise our work approach,” says Papanikolaou.

people grow’s approach evidently succeeds. “people grow may be a start-up, but the success we have had so far proves us and our approach right: the projects we took care of in the last four years were all crowned by success and we managed to find for each candidate the ideal job and for each vacancy the perfect candidate,” Papanikolaou is pleased to inform.

The work of people grow has only just started and, given the fact that in Germany alone 80 per cent of all employees work in jobs unsuited for them and their abilities, let’s keep our fingers crossed that their services will continue to bear fruit.
